Section 3 – Community Environment: Destination site access

The following questions relate to how the accessibility of buildings influences your participation in doing activities at selected sites in your community.

In this first section, accessibility refers to your ability to go into and move around inside the various places listed. Things that can affect accessibility include doorway size, the weight of doors, the direction a door opens or how fast it closes; convenient location of ramps, if applicable; availability of elevators or escalators; the size of restrooms; the location of furniture in a room, etc.

Since many sites are not accessible for all people, questions in the first section cover either situation. The question can be used to imply "accessibility" or "inaccessibility," whichever way fits your experience at the specified site. Each person's own needs should dictate accessibility of the site. Keep in mind that you should choose only one response for the accessibility question.

If you find the site to be accessible, your response would either be "Helps some" or "Helps a lot." An example of an accessible site would be a restaurant where tables are not spaced close together and chairs can be moved away from the table to accommodate someone in a wheelchair. However, if you find a site inaccessible, your response would either be marked "Limits some" or "Limits a lot." An example of an inaccessible site would be a fast-food restaurant where the chairs are attached to the table. Someone in a wheelchair may not be able to get to the table.

If accessibility of a site (grocery store, movie theater, etc.) does not facilitate or hinder your participation in activities taking place there, mark "Has no effect/Have no effect." You may also mark if you do not go to a particular site.

If your access to a site limits your participation (doing activities at the site), then you will be asked to check those barriers that keep you from participating.

Section 3 – Community Environment: Services, Attitudes & Policies

The next questions ask about how personal support and the services of people proving that support influence your participation. The first part of the question asks you about how frequently you go to or use a service (more than twice a week, once or twice a week, once a month, once or twice a year, rarely or never). The second part of the question asks about how much the care provided by the service providers influences your participation in your daily activities at home or in your community (helps a lot, helps some, limits some, limits a lot). The third portion of the question asks about how the attitudes of the service providers influence the use of the service. For example, does the attitude of your physician help a lot, help some, limit some or limit a lot your use of his/her health care services.

Please indicate how often you go to or use services from the people listed. Then mark how the services and the attitudes of these people influence your participation in activities.
