The Passionate Love Scale

Researchers who are conducting research into Passionate Love often need two identical tests of Passionate Love: One for pre-test and one for post-test. Form A is the commonly used Passionate Love Scale. This is Form B, an alternate form, with slightly different but equivalent questions.

Both Forms of the PLS are designed to measure the cognitive, emotional, and behavioral dimensions of love:

I. Cognitive
   a. Intrusive thinking; preoccupation with the thoughts of the partner.
   b. Idealization of the loved one and the relationship
   c. Desire for knowledge: to know and be known by the partner

II. Emotional
   a. Attraction to the other; pleasant feelings for the other when things go well.
   b. Ambivalence or negative feelings (emptiness, anxiety, despair) when things go awry.
   c. Longing for reciprocity
   d. Desire for ”complete union,” permanency
   e. Physiological (sexual) arousal.

III. Behavioral
   a. Actions aimed at determining the other’s feelings
   b. Serving and helping the other.
Passionate Love Scale
(Form B)

We would like to know how you feel (or once felt) about the person you love, or have loved, most passionately. Some common terms for passionate love are romantic love, infatuation, love sickness, or obsessive love.

Please think of the person whom you love most passionately right now. If you are not in love, please think of the last person you loved. If you have never been in love, think of the person you came closest to caring for in that way.

Try to describe the way you felt when your feelings were most intense. Answers range from (1) Not at all true to (9) Definitely true.

Whom are you thinking of?

• Someone I love right now.
• Someone I once loved.
• I have never been in love.
